“ I remember when Katie and I would always go to our aunts place to hangout with our favorite cousin when we got bored. Gage was always in his room playing the guitar. Every now and then we would go in there just to hangout and listen to him play. One day he asked Katie and I if we wanted to learn a song called Johnny B Good by Chuck Berry. We were immediately up for it. Gage sang that song to us little by little until we knew it word for word. He played as we sang, we were laughing, smiling and dancing and after all was said and done he said "Hey, we should start a band." Out of all the many many memories I have with Gage, this is the one that hits me the most. He was always so much fun to be around. There was never a dull moment around Gage. He knew how to keep everyone smiling and laughing. He will always be my Pooh Bear.

“ I remember when my sister (Katie) and I would always go over to our Aunt Tinas. Gage was ALWAYS playing guitar in his room and when he was, Katie and I would go in there just to hangout and listen to him play because he was so good at it. He played this one specific song and wanted us to learn the lyrics, so we did. We sang, he played and boy did we love it! "He could play the guitar just like ringing a bell" - Johnny B Goode by Chuck Berry. I'll never forget this song or the many many memories we've made. Gage will always be my pooh bear.
