There comes a time in every life where there is no longer pain & strife, a time that comes for every man to say ' Goodbye', and take Gods' Hand. A time when all that is said and done matters only to loved ones. A time when one is reconciled, returning to Our Father, to rest for awhile. A time when moments become memories of love, fragments of ones' life reflected by trust that in this life that one once lived, he cherished others as he now is. A hope and desire that when it came time to take his last breath he was graced with everlasting peace, his soul forever blessed. There comes a time in every life where there is no longer pain and strife, this much I know to be true...still it doesn't erase the heartache we feel in losing you. Through our tears and sorrow we shall get by giving way to the joy in our hearts that your life has placed upon them, knowing that in the Lords' Light you shall remain, forevermore with Him and in His presence live in the blessed assurance of His Love, without end.

I love you, "PawPaw."
